A STARTLING BUMOR.

A Richmond paper of the 3d inst., according to the telegraph, makes the astounding aunounce ment that one Colonel HENRY HEATH, of Virginia, has been nominated by the President as Major-general of the forces in Missouri to superseds Gen. PRICE. We cannot believe that the Administration would be guilty of such reckless imberility as this change would indicate, and shall accordingly await the confirmation of the it. Gen. PRICE has demonstrated himself to be wher of the country, and his achievements so far in this war entitle him to an appointment at the hands of the Government commensurate with the popular estimate of his merits. The idea of his being supersoded is too preporterous for $ moment's consideration.

The idea that the North will ever be able to accomplish the conquest of the South, and force her nuder the yeke of the imbecile dynasty at Washington, has long since been abandoned as an exploded dogues by all infelligent persons in of its own citizens. A majority of these are purposes of the Lincoln wig-wam, and its unscrupulous agents. It is represented daily that the great and sublime struggle now transpiring than himself. among us, whose sole purpose is to assert and vindicate a people's right to govern themselves, to the descrated piece of mere bunting that has soldier boys. ression that follows, is to accomplish the res acustomed to peruse the columns of the Semmes are the Senators from Louisiana. South and no doubt if a fair expression of the voice of the entire South was taken, there would be a majority in favor of the Union; if so, are they not coerced into subjection to the author ties of the "Southern Confederacy," and would it be subjugation to the South to let them return to the Union if a majority desire it? In short. is not the South already subjugated by designing men who sprang this revolt upon her !

This is a very palpable backing down from the lafty boastings with which we were regaled to of the United States. The International Question. The St. Louis News, notwithstanding its Republican sympathles, publishes the following on the seizure of Masors. Mason and Slidell :

The capture of Slideli and Mason presents the clearest and sharpest international question that the war has yet produced. It is a cause for resicing that two men who did so much to produce this war, and are recognized as powersing incommon powers for effecting mischief, should be thus arrested at the very moment of their ex-ultation over their escape of the blocksde, and rought back in ignominy to our shores. The egradation of their position is deepened by the seizure of their dispatches and papers, which contain, no doubt, full instructions from the Richmond government as to the course they were to pursue in Europe, and the valuable commerial privileges they were to offer to Great Britain and France, as a condition for the recognition the Southern Confederacy. The Lieut Fairfax, who took them from the British shop, is, we believe, a Virginian, with a lineage that runs back to Lord Fairiax, one of the most illustrious early proprietors of the colony of Virginia. But, gratifying as it is to have these men in our possession, their forcible schure on the deck of a British mail packet by an armed force, and defiance of the protest of the British captain, is a gross infraction of international law, and a clear violation of the principle for which we fought England in 1812.

The first statement that Slidell and Mason were seized on bound the ship Fingal, known have been engaged in contraband trade with se South, seems to have been a mistake, as a later account states that they were taken from the British mail packet Trentz.

Had it been the Pingal on which they were aboard, the affair would be deprived of much of its difficulty; but the mail packet Trentz was not only a British vessel, but, to a certain extent, a British government vessel-a fact which cortainly does not detract from the gravity and inportance of the transaction. It is clearly a casus ure an | helli : whether or not it shall lead to trouble do pends altogether upon the temper of the British

Mr. Seward will, as be undoubtedly should, make a prompt and limb apology for the offense to the British government, and disavow the act of Capt. Wilken. If the Beitigh cabinet is sincersiy disposed to avoid a quarrel, this apology and disavowal will be accepted as estimateday But if it be desirous of quareeling with our gur ernment, and eager for a pretext to base a quarrel upon, it will find it in this winure, and all conatory proffers from Mr. Seward will be rejective It may be that the British cabinet will Famand surrender of the captured rebels; of so, it will be a demand that we would be lot b to comply with, and which, perhaps, we would not cumply with, as we cannot think the virequetances the case call for such a surfemiler. As the seisure was clearly wrong, however, we would have Mr. Seward go to the extreme of apolicy and disclaimer, to scothe the wonnied price he British government; and the officer who made the seizure even might be cashiered, he sides, as his countigmen would certainly see to it that he suffered nothing in the long run by an act of patriotism, whose only fault was its too
